“ Any and I shared the same birthday. Many a time I remember driving she and her sisters Katie and Jamie around the east end. Once in “G-woman’s” car, the lectures would begin. I remember one time, Amy and Katie were sparing over the advisability of using “the Weed”.. Amy haD been trying to talk Katie out of sampling the herb. First thing Amy said when she got in the car was, “Mrs Grady, will you please tell Katie why she shouldn’t smoke pot. After every point I’d make, Amy would say, “See Katie, I told you! Then there was the Christmas My husband Pat bought the three girls porcelain Victorian Dolls. Amy’s eyes got really big, she was utterly speechless, except for a thank you. I hope Amy knows how important she was to a lot of people. I hope she’s found peace and I hope her short life leaves all those who loved her with some great memories and life lessons. Go with God Amy. And to her family , take comfort in knowing she’s not alone
