“ My name is Kevin Butler, I was Craig’s Company Commander in Alaska. I just heard about Craig’s passing and I would like to extend my heartfelt condolences to Craig’s family. Craig and I talked off and on over the past few years, sharing our love for animals and just catching up talking about old times. He was a special soldier, and he played a critical role in the Company as a mortar man. No matter how challenging the conditions were, he always maintained his sense of humor and his professionalism. He excelled at his job and I could always count on him to provide indirect fire for the entire Company. There is a special bond between infantrymen and he will be sorely missed...He was a brother to all of us. I’m so sorry that I’m just now hearing about this. Rest easy brother...until we meet again.

“ Craig was my Army brother as well. We suffered and celebrated together and he could always be counted on in either circumstance. I'm sorry to just now find out about his passing, and offer my condolences to everyone. He will be missed. Rest easy brother. Bulls lead the way.

“ I'm sorry I am posting late here, we just found out about Craig's passing.

I had the great honor to know and serve with Craig in Bravo Company 2nd Battalion 1st Infantry Regiment, 172nd Infantry Brigade (separate) out of Fort Wainwright, Alaska back in the late 90's to early 2000's. We shivered our asses off together in the frozen tundra wilderness of FT. Greely, and flew into the jungles and bars of Thailand on Blackhawks & Tuktuks. Those were some great times and Craig was a good dude, any Bull could always count on him when the chips were down and he always had some crazy joke or movie quote. I am gonna miss you Brother.

“ We are some of the ‘neighborhood walkers’. We would run into Craig frequently and always was greeted with a friendly smile and conversation. Unless it was Halloween- then you’d be greeted with the Jason costume and him trying to scare the crap out of your kids (which was always super fun!). We will miss seeing him.

“ Craig will always be remembered as a kind-spirited soul. We will truly miss seeing him out and about. With our deepest sympathies - Cindy & Gerad, his Summit St. neighbors
