“ When I was a kid Dennis would always let me pick out a comic book to read. I would reach down into his treasury chest filled with hundreds of comic books. I did this every time my dad took me to visit my favorite Aunt Jean (his mother). I remember running up all those steps to Dennis's bed room. "Dennis, can I please have a comic book." He would always smile and say yes. It was always so exciting to me.

Dennis is at peace now and with his Margaret. I will always remember that no matter what came his way, Dennis kept that wonderful sense of humor of his and his great laugh. Rest in peace Dennis

He did have a great laugh! I remember laughing with him at Frank Zappa and the Mothers of Invention. He got the humor when most thought they were just weird. He had a very sophisticated ear for music that I, as a musician, really appreciated. At the same time he was a Marine. God Bless You, Den.

Bob and Dennis had some crazy memories it could take a book to tell all. They would do long walks to downtown and back. Talk on the phone for hours you know with the old rotary phones. The beer can collection they could have unfortunately they are probably on Homey Hill, Butler Street and possibly in the river. He had a good sense of humor and always made light of things. He would travel to Florida without anyone knowing. but everyone figured it when he was on TV at one of the Steeler / Dolphin game in the 80"s. so when they couldn't find him they would check with us in Florida. Aunt Jean would be mad cause we didn't call her. But we didn't know he didn't tell her. The funny part is he never told us either we would just see him walking down Griffin Road looking for our house!!! That is probably the most memorable memory. of course it wasn't funny with Aunt Jean but eventually it was the best story to tell. We had some great visits with Dennis. Not going to lie the two of them actually would drive me crazy but we have a lot more memories that we can share. A lot of happy ones and crazy ones, and of course the sad times. They are ours always to treasure and share when we can. We deeply miss him. We could go on and on and on. Now he is with family he hasn't seen for a while enjoying the partying.

WE will miss you deeply Dennis and LOVE YA!!! Watch over us :)

Also, Dennis never packed a suitcase. He would wear all his clothes he needed. Layer, after layers of clothes. He was always happy and smiling. Love ya. Delia
