“ My deepest sympathy to all of you. I shared these great memories on facebook and wanted to pass along on here as well.

Every day for the past 8 years when my husband comes home talking about his day as a teacher I can't help but feel jealous as I reflect on my time as a student. I learned so much from so many! I am a proud wife when I hear from students and parents how Brad makes learning fun and is the best teacher they've ever had! I too had a teacher like that. She was strong, passionate about teaching and her family and helped me realize that as a young woman the sky was the limit! She introduced me to Jane Austen. I would read Pride and Prejudice every day if I could. One of the first books I bought for Ella was a children's version of Pride and Prejudice. I will forever cherish the letter of recommendation she wrote to Westminster. She spoke from the heart and mentioned qualities that as a teenager I didn't think I had, but she saw. I was so glad that we were able to reconnect a few years ago. I expressed how I often wanted to go in to teaching so that I could touch someone's life the same way she had mine, but we laughed as we both knew that being a teacher wasn't for me! I chose a different career path but also volunteer for Big Brothers Big Sisters in hope that one day I can inspire a young person the same way she inspired me!

I can only hope as a Mother, my children will be blessed with a teacher like Mrs. Meckey. Thank you for every thing! My thoughts and prayers are with her friends and family whom she often spoke so highly about! She will be greatly missed but also greatly remembered ❤️

“ ML was one of a kind. There is no other way to describe her. Many will talk about her as a teacher and I don't know that she would want to be called anything else. She was a teacher of many things but most of all I will remember her to be a teacher of acceptance and love. she truly was one of a kind and I will be forever grateful for having her a part of my life. I will miss you a lot, ML, but I know you are in a much better place.

Love you TMeck, Matt, Anna, Damien, Kurt, Karli, Logan, and Lena
